SLIDING SECURITY DOOR LOCK

SPECIFICATIONS

The first screen door catches were designed for fly screen doors aimed at keeping out those pesky insects. As screen doors developed into security screen doors, catches have made way for lockable security solutions that provide the highest level of security while complimenting home design trends.

The Sabre range of hinged and sliding security screen door locks meet these requirements and are tested to tough Australian standards. The lock body is made from pressed steel and is coupled with improved functionality and an industry footprint for ease of retro-fitting.

Furniture shape and design options offer a wide range of traditional or modern designs to suit any home.

Safe select gives you 2 stages of locking. Stage 1 or safety mode, allows the occupant to lock both handles whilst still allowing the internal snib to unlock when needed. This mode is ideal for when you are at home. Stage 2 or security mode, locks both handles and snib. Once in security mode a key is the only way to unlock the door. This mode is normally used for when you are away from home.
